

Name: Sentient Ultimate Cannonbolt

One-line Introduction: A sentient evolved Arburian Pelarota trapped in the Ultimatrix and later freed by Azmuth and Ben.

Appearance: The sentient Ultimate Cannonbolt looks identical to the regular Ultimate Cannonbolt, with the exception of having red eyes and lacking the evolved Ultimatrix symbol on his chest.

History: The sentient Ultimate Cannonbolt was trapped in the Ultimatrix as Ultimate Cannonbolt. In "The Ultimate Sacrifice," he, along with other sentient Ultimates, attempted to convince Ben to commit suicide in order to free them. However, Ben was stopped by Azmuth, who then freed the Ultimates and took them to his lab, providing them with a comfortable and useful environment.

Weaknesses: Not mentioned.

Powers and Abilities: The sentient Ultimate Cannonbolt possesses powers similar to regular Arburian Pelarotas, but with enhanced capabilities. He has the ability to transform into a sphere, granting him enhanced speed. His shell is much thicker and metallic, increasing his defensive capabilities. The plates on his shell are covered with studs that turn into spikes when in sphere form, enhancing his offensive capabilities. He has enhanced strength, demonstrated by smashing Sunder to the ground and creating shockwaves by punching. His body naturally absorbs nuclear energy, as shown when he held P'Andor. He can also fire his spikes as projectiles.

Personality: Not mentioned.